Marion E. Goddard is a self-taught artist. When her two children were small she raised, bred, and showed Champion Shih Tzu puppies, winning at prestigious events such as the Westminster Kennel Club show in NYC.

She then went to work managing the International Division of a small Medical Instrument Company. Then she progressed to being Product/Marketing Manager of Urology and Cardiopulmonary products in the Asia/Pacific and then Japan Division of a Fortune 500 medical manufacturer in the U.S., substantially raising sales and winning several awards.

Traveling has given her an appreciation of many different artistic cultures throughout the world, and she enjoys the simplistic interplay between shapes and colors.

She has taken art lessons from several Master artists in the U.S. in oils, watercolors and clay art, and now, being retired, has time to paint in many different media. Her current passion is painting in pastels, oils and acrylics. She makes most of her own jewelry, and is known for the bracelets she makes in different colors of glass combined with accents of silver.
